THIS IS SALVATION ARMY WEEK

National Salvation Army Week, a period for celebrating the organization's progress in helping the nation's unfortunates, started May 20 in hundreds of communities throughout the United States.

Noting that The Salvation Army in the last ten years had provided 100,000,000 free meals, or the equivalent of one meal for more than half of the country's population, National Commander Donald McMillan reaffirmed The Salvation Army's twin goals of physical regeneration and spiritual rebirth of the nation's unfortunates.

As in the Salvation Army's beginning in this country—its first open-air meeting was held in New York in 1880—the organization's emphasis has been on spiritual help to the lowest-income segment of the population whose members have few churches, family or other supporting relationships. Last year Salvation Army officers and soldiers conducted indoor religious services attended by 18,877,423 persons.

One Salvationist service, known to many people because of the familiar red trucks which call regularly at homes to pick up discarded furniture and clothing, is that provided by the Men's Social Service Centers. Last year an opportunity for self-help was provided in such centers to 42,987 men.

Another Salvation Army service, in which the organization cooperates with the police and other authorities, is that of locating missing persons. Last year 1,500 lost persons were located in answer to pleas to The Army from relatives and friends. Some of these persons were among the two and a half million homeless or transient men and women who were given warm, clean lodgings in Salvation Army institutions.

Guidance to persons who found themselves facing domestic and other problems was given last year by The Army's Family Service Bureau to 324,030 individuals.

Assistance in catastrophes such as floods, storms, fires and wrecks is being provided on a nationwide scale by The Salvation Army. The organization cooperates closely with other organizations in such disasters, particularly in the operation of its growing fleet of mobile canteens.

Records of The Salvation Army for 1955 show that battles of The Army's League of Mercy visited more than two million persons in hospitals and homes for the aged, and that spiritual leadership and recreational opportunities were offered to almost four million boys and girls in Salvation Army youth centers.

PINE TREE SOCIETY REPORTS

CLOSE TO $70,000 RAISED

The Pine Tree Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., has announced that close to $70,000 has been raised to date in the 1956 Easter Seal campaign, which set a goal of $82,000, to aid Maine's handicapped children. It is hoped that contributions will continue to come in during the next few weeks.

Pine Tree Camp at Rome, one of the facilities of the Pine Tree Society, which Easter Seals help to maintain, will open July 1 for its eighth week season. Applications for admission of any handicapped child between the ages of 8 and 16, who may benefit from this highly specialized camp program, should be addressed to Duncan H. Farrell, Director, Bath, Maine.

The Society expresses its gratitude to over 400 local volunteer chairman and their committees and to all Maine citizens who, through their contributions to Easter Seals, are supporting the rehabilitation program for the crippled children of Maine.

Phillips V Brooks, with Lee Dunne, Kansas, and Bert Hutchinson, Michigan, students at Yale University, spent the week end with Mr and Mrs Phillips Brooks.

COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

George Taylor has recently applied two coats of paint to the shed built last year near the Town Garage, naturally this is quite an improvement. As there seems to be no one in Town interested in applying surfacing to private driveways we will continue as last year. Please let us know as far in advance as possible if you wish any driveway work done. We much prefer having you get them all ready for the surfacing if possible. Costs will be kept as low as reasonably possible.

Charles Kelly of Jay will spray by plane for insect control this year on May 23 and 24, weather permitting. You probably will want to keep your cars under cover as much as possible.

Thank you,
O. T. Rozelle

On May 17 the Annual Luncheon of the Ladies Club was served at Martha's Grill. Seventeen members and one guest, Mrs. Norvin Humphrey were seated at table for a delicious luncheon. The guest of honor, Mrs. Emma Van Den Kerckhoven, was presented an orchid corsage at the beginning of the meal.

The Ladies Club is proud to pay tribute to one who for 67 years has been a member of the West Parish Congregational Church and allied organizations.

Mrs. Van's service record is a proud one. Her originality and executive abilities have been responsible for hundreds of successful money-making projects and social affairs in the life of this church. There are no failures when Emma is at the helm. It was her foresighted vision that saw the need of a second organized group for mothers of young children and working women of this urgency the church Guild with evening meetings came into being 25 years ago.

Her mind is keen, her health is good, her wit is sparkling and her judgment is excellent. Congratulations and best wishes.

Idea from other editors

From the Dave Creek Press, Dave Creek, Colorado. "Brainwashing" joined the English language shortly after the first American captives of the Korean conflict were returned to the prisoner exchange. The term refers to the actions of their enemy captors as the Communist forces attempted to sway their American captives to their line of thinking.

However, without identification of the action as such, segments of America's population have been undergoing "brainwashing" for more than 20 years.

All too frequently, the news on the national scene is filled with stories of labor violence and strife. Why? Simply because the organized laborer to the factory, the shop, or the store has undergone so much "brainwashing" from the union boss and the cooperative governmental bureaucrat that he's convinced that management owes him his job.

This "brainwashing" of the American laborer is reflected further into the quality of his work. The poor quality of workmanship in the so-called "famous names" of household appliances, television sets, and automobiles has become a serious problem in the eyes of the big manufacturers today.

Yet, what can be done about it as long as the man on the assembly line has substituted "this outfit owes me my job" for pride of workmanship?

But, let's leave the factory and head for the open country where we'll find the same thing happening on the farms of America.

Although some of the farm and livestock organizations have been fighting government regimentation for several years, still there is that portion of the farm population that believes that "the government owes me a living."

And, thanks to overzealous political aspirants, the American farmer is practically in a position where it is impossible for him to help himself—he has to depend on the government for that. The solution to these problems, if there is any, won't be easy and won't be painless. The question is—can anything be done to correct these situations or is it already too late?

The individual who believes that the government owes him a living will wake up some day to find that he owes his living to the government.

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Various proposals for amending the federal social security system and for broadening its benefits are under discussion. One would lower the eligibility age to 55 for totally and permanently disabled people.

In the surface, this may seem a win as well as a humane idea. But a number of sympathetic observers, looking beneath the surface, have found it quite the opposite. In their view, this change would be dangerous and ill-considered and would work against the best interests of the bulk of disabled persons.

That view was expressed to the Senate Committee on Finance by a man who is exceptionally qualified. His name is Henry Viscardi, and, in his own words, he "was born a crippled child, severely deformed with no legs, hands" less than four years ago. He started a company called "Artistic Temperatures" with 5000 of borrowed money, and four employees. Today there are 100 people on the payroll and expansion plans are underway for a new plant which will employ about 150 in the next three years.

The man's remarkable thing about the company is that all the work is done while he is in a wheelchair. Mr. Viscardi testified, there was a total of 100 disabled and 100 able-bodied men. The disabled, he said, were the best workers.

The company's main activity is in the field of electronics, where it does work for some large and famous corporations. But it also is in other fields, including process plants, oil and mining and mechanical.

Mr. Viscardi testified, there was a total of 100 disabled and 100 able-bodied men. The disabled, he said, were the best workers.

IN ENGLAND WITH MISS LAURA WILSON

March 27

Dear Folks,

Always I have had romantic ideas about Switzerland. Believe me, the actual country has not let me down. At 6:30 this morning Stan knocked on our door in expectation that we should be ready to go. I grumbled from the depths of my bed and wondered what all the commotion was about. Jane shrieked "It's 6:30. Oh, the alarm mustn't have gone off!" Twenty-five minutes later we started on our way toward Bern. We were quite pleased with ourselves.

After a short stop for breakfast we found ourselves entering a very mountainous section which, since we had recently passed through customs, we immediately identified as Switzerland. The roads are paved very well from both the utilitarian and scenic point of view. Above you are cliffs and wooded slopes. As the road is largely evergreen and the cliffs look like Tumble Down Dick I felt right at home. However, on the other side the ground swiftly falls away in smooth green slopes to the valley floor far below where a clear stream slowly makes its way between trees and small villages. No wonder the Swiss can ski, but how they keep the soil in the gardens and their yards is beyond me.

After much consideration I have decided that the Swiss have the most artistic sense of any people I have met so far. Do you remember the only picture I drew well in Grammar School? There was a Bern all the buildings on the main house perched on a hill. Well, I streets have had their first floors thought of that when I looked at the houses here. Each house is placed to command a view, and what a view!

Even in Bern the houses along the river are placed in tiers so that the houses above look but over the houses below. In the country towns the houses are placed in the same way starting in the lowest part of the valley and ascending a short way up the steep hills on either side. Stan says that the Italians always settled on the tops of the hills in contrast with the Swiss. He thinks the reason for the difference lies in the fact that the Italians were always fighting among themselves. Hilltops are evidently easier to defend than valleys. I never tried.

Swiss houses look like any house looked! All the roofs hang out a long way. Apply the principle to house and barn, add many different colors and combinations beneath the roof and you have Swiss-land. We have seen stone houses, pink houses, white and brown houses, stucco houses. Some roofs actually curve.

Switzerland, unlike England, uses imagination in their building. For blocks in England all the houses look the same — like Nabisco cracker boxes. The Swiss are much more original. Every house is different.

In the towns the old and new are combined in such a way that harmony results. I have rarely seen so many modern Hollywood-like shops, hotels, dining rooms in one place as I have in Bern and Zurich today. What's more, they all have real central heating, a term which I question when used in reference to the picture I drew well in Grammar School! There was a Bern all the buildings on the main house perched on a hill. Well, I streets have had their first floors thought of that when I looked at

TODAY'S Meditation

THE WORLD'S MOST WIDELY USED DEVOTIONAL GUIDE

Read John 14:12-17. I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever. (John 14:16).

Jim was twelve years old. One evening he told his father that he could not believe in the Holy Spirit because he could not see Him.

Next day his father, an electrician, took him to the plant. Showing Jim the generators, he said, "This is where the power comes from to heat our stove and give us light. We cannot see the power, but it is in that machine and in the power lines."

"Oh, I believe in electricity," Jim cut in. "I know you do," his father agreed, "but you do not believe in it because you can see it, but because you can see what it can do. Likewise you can believe in the Holy Spirit as the result of seeing what He does in people's lives when they are surrendered to Christ and possess His power."

Many thousands today do not recognize the working of the Holy Spirit despite Jesus' promise that He would come to dwell with us, to teach and direct us, and to reveal to us the things of God.

Prayer. Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the gift of the Holy Spirit. Help us so to love Thee that He may become the motivating power in our lives. Grant to us the comfort of His presence. In our Saviour's name we pray. Amen.

Thought For The Day. "In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." — Arthur C. Walker, Educator (Australia).

HOW TO SETTLE AN INSURANCE CLAIM

When you have an insurance claim, you will want to be sure to get the full benefits of your policy. You can get quick action if you file your claim right and know how to deal with the insurance adjuster, according to the editors of "Changing Times." The Kiplinger Magazine.

Notify your agent at once. Many policies have notification time limits and if you are late, you may have trouble collecting.

Read your policy. Many a legiti-mate claim has been passed up by a policy holder who was not aware of how much protection he had bought.

Write down what happened. Get down every detail you can remember: time of day, witnesses, etc., whether it's a fire, theft or auto accident.

List the damage. The insurance company may require proof that damaged articles are really yours, so round up all evidence of your ownership, such as titles or bills of sale.

Estimate the amount of your loss. Your garage man will give you an estimate of car damage; in other matters, your canceled checks, receipts, etc., will come in handy.

Once you accept settlement, you will be asked to sign a release stating that the insurance company has no further obligation. If you are not satisfied with the offer, don't accept payment and don't sign the release. Here are some steps you might take instead: Get new estimates or other evidence to support your claim. Consult a public adjuster. Pull your agent back into the act and see if he will go to bat for you. Ask for a reference appraisal. You can use it if you have complied with all the conditions of the policy.

Your best course is to know from the very start what's in your policy and to press for what's due you, no more and no less.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

Bellingham, Wash., Herald: "Despite the political cry of 'giveaway' which any diminution of government-owned property is suggested, if much of this property were on the tax rolls as private property the tax burden... would be materially lightened. Basically, the nation was built on a policy of private enterprise."

Wilcox, Ariz., Range News: "The American people can be proud of themselves. Through their untiring efforts they have brought about the coining of a brand new word. This word is 'litterbug' and it is to be included in the new edition of Funk and Wagnall's dictionary. Is it too much to suggest that each of us sees how soon the word can become obsolete?"

Antigo, Wis., Daily Journal: "Husbands and fathers who used to find it relatively easy to duck their responsibilities by fleeing to another state no longer have that opportunity, the states having entered into mutual agreements for return of such offenders."

team from our grade are: Kennard Bennett, Donnie Rice, David Salway, Fred Lincoln, Jeffery Hutchins, Jimmy Bartlett, Richard York, Jud Howe, Freddie DesRoche. The managers are Stanley Moore and Peter Stowell, who are both from our grade.—Mr. Helms took his room on a nature walk Tuesday. They were gone an hour and found many interesting things.—CPS is playing their first baseball game Thursday at Andover. Mr. Helms' room recently started working on graphs in Math. Mr. Helms is talking the patrolmen to Gilead on a picnic Monday night. He is talking them on a bus. Reporters, Elizabeth Jackson, Mary Willard and Linda Brown.
